Pep Rally To Gather Gaelhaters

Five o'clock is the time and the Lower Campus is the place for the new-type pep rally to be held on Friday.

The new pep rally is under the organization of Cookie Lazarus and Cameron Grout, co-chairman of the Red and White Committee. The cheerleading corps will be present to get everyone's larynx back into shape.

The entire Redmen team will be introduced to the crowd by coach Bruce Coulter while at centerfield a Queen's Golden Gael will be similarly presented to the gathering.

EXECUTION

The Department of Buildings and Grounds will construct a gallows at mid-field. From the tip, a Gael player will be hung in effigy. Following the presentation of the Redmen a minor conflagration will be ignited at the foot of the gallows and the whole contraption, body and all, will be left to burn.

Commenting on the early hour of the rally, Lazarus remarked, "We can instill the right type of spirit for the occasion because it is being held at five o'clock."

QUEEN'S EN MASSE

A very large contingent of Queen's supporters will arrive at Central Station, early Friday evening and will remain in town at least until Sunday. No definite data as to time of arrival, or numbers of fans was available at press time, as tickets sales start at Queen's this morning.

An unofficial spokesman from that university did say however, that the contingent may reach the 2,000 mark. Watch tomorrow's Daily for accurate facts and figures.

Talk On Kibbutz System Given By Israel Carmon

by EVE KRUPSKI

"I am very skeptical about being able to build Kibbutzim in countries other than Israel," remarked Mr. Israel Carmon yesterday as he addressed a combined group of the Student Zionist Organization and the Socialist Club.

In his talk concerning "Socialism on the Kibbutz in Israel," he mentioned the interest of other countries in Israel's System of Kibbutz, (a form of co-operative farming) and discussed various aspects of the system that make it unique to Israel.

"The Kibbutz cannot succeed if people want to realize the same aims in it as they normally do. They must have a desire to change the social situation, which must serve as an obvious and vital purpose in life."

CERTAIN GOAL

He continued by adding that the Kibbutznik (member of the Kibbutz), has taken a certain goal because he thinks that he is most needed by society in that place.

"Doctor Faustus" Cast Announced By Director

"Doctor Faustus" will be the scholar most up to tricks on November 16, 17 and 18 when the McGill English Department presents the Christopher Marlowe play in Moyse Hall. Mr. Frank Faragoh, director of the play, last night released the names of the final cast to the Daily.

James Bradford will play Faustus, the tragic Renaissance scholar who sells his soul to the devil for the magical power to do whatever he wants. Bradford recently played Lear in an English Department reading of "King Lear".

He also played the key role of Prospero in last summer's production of "The Tempest" by "The Paupers", and last year he played the role of God in the English Department production of the medieval mystery play, "Adam."

Donald MacIntyre will play Mephistophilis, the devil's servant who becomes Faustus' slave for 24 years. MacIntyre also played a leading role in "The Tempest" last summer.

COMIC SERVANT

The comic servant who imitates his master and conjures up minor devils from Faustus' conjuring book, Wagner, will be played by Michael Packard, who has frequently starred in English Department productions.

Anne Farmer will appear as the beautiful Helen of Troy, "the face that launched a thousand ships." Miss Farmer has been seen in other English Department productions and also in the McGill Red and White revue.

Robin Oulton will play the pope whose ears are boxed by the invisible Faustus, and two low comedy rustics, Robin and Ralph, will be played by Christopher Burke and Anthony Northey.

In the fantasy scene showing The Seven Deadly Sins are Robin Oulton as Pride, Christopher Burke as Covetousness, Brian Walton as Wrath, Marilyn Sims as Envy, Derek Lutyens as Gluttony, Anthony Northey as Sloth and Anne Wood as Lechery.

OTHERS

Others in the cast are John Musset as Lucifer, Kenneth Gordon as the Emperor, Jean-Paul Spire as Alexander the Great, Isabelle Cookson as Alexander's paramour, Robert Common and David Ogden as Devil assistants and Billy Walker doubling in the parts of the Friar and Courtier.

Alan Butler designed the sets for "Doctor Faustus," Helgi Ulk the costumes, while the lights are by Philip Laney and Michel Boyer. Alena Kotrly will take care of properties and staging. Managing are Colin Gravener and Tanya Ballyntyne.

All seats are reserved and can be obtained at the Old Union box office.

University Medical Examination

All students in their first year at McGill must present themselves for general medical examination and routine laboratory tests. These are given by appointment with the Health Service. Students failing to comply with this requirement by December 1 will be subject to a fine of $25, and students failing to comply by December 15 will be suspended from the University.

Every student who has been in continuous attendance must be medically re-examined by the Health Service in his sixth year at the University. Every student who has spent one or more academic years away from the University must be medically re-examined during the year in which he re-registers.

Other students must present themselves for a chest x-ray examination once during each academic year. This examination is given by appointment with the Health Service, at a date to be announced. Students failing to comply with this requirement by a date to be announced will be subject to a $25 fine. Students failing to comply by a final date will be suspended from the University.

Three Major Events Scheduled By Union

During the next week, the Union is sponsoring functions which will be of interest to the entire student body. The events are the Annual Presidents' Banquet, a Tea Dance after the Queen's game on Saturday, and a testimonial dinner to honour a former employee of the Union.

Tomorrow, at 6:45 pm, the annual President's Banquet will be held in Redpath Hall. Over the years, the nature of this event has changed from that of a formal dinner into a constructive workshop of club presidents, meeting to discuss problems of a relatively important nature, in an informal atmosphere.

It was during the tenure of office of Zafar Khan as Union President that the idea of the International Students' Association was born, and this association was set up and functioning the following autumn.

LAST YEAR

The first banquet last year discussed how to get along with the press and radio, while the second one discussed Fraternities. Judge Puddicombe, Chairman of the Senate Committee on Fraternities addressed the executives, and a fruitful discussion followed.

Marnie Duff, the Union's Social Committee Chairman told the Daily, "This year, as in the past, the President or Chairman of every club and society at McGill has been invited, provided that we were able to find out their names and addresses".

Dr. James has consented to address the group, in an informal speech on McGill's expansion program. The speech will be followed by a question period.

TEA DANCE

After the football game on Saturday with Queen's, there will be a Tea Dance in the Old Union Ballroom. The event is being billed as a "Twist Dance", with a special band that can play this type of music, in addition to the regular numbers.

Students are asked to note that infractions of regulations, and any misconduct, may result in severe disciplinary measures.

TESTIMONIAL

A testimonial dinner for George Foster, former custodian of the Tuckshop, who retired last spring, will be held next Thursday. Former Union Presidents and other friends of George will be invited to honour him for his years of service on behalf of the Union and the students.

Alton Goldbloom Will Address Pre-Med Society

Dr. Alton Goldbloom, Emeritus Professor of Pediatrics, will address the Pre-Medical Society on "Pediatrics, Its Growth and Development" today in Biology 250 at 1 pm.

Dr. Goldbloom received his degree at McGill and worked at the Children's Memorial Hospital for some time. He has since practised at the Montreal Children's Hospital, the Jewish General Hospital, and has acted as consultant for children's hospitals throughout the United States and Canada.

BOOKS

Two books, "The Care of the Child" and his autobiography "Small Patients, the Autobiography of a Children's Doctor" have been written by Dr. Goldbloom, who has also published numerous papers in scientific literature.

A Key For The Students

The Scarlet Key, in their capacity of football patrolmen, have played a large part throughout this season in the maintenance of law and order. Under the present system, their actions have been generally praise-worthy; but the basic principles and regulations guiding our honour society are open to question.

As far as we can determine, one of the main objectives of recent disciplinary actions by the SEC was a demonstration of support for its authorized peace officers, and of the proper respect which should be accorded our honour society. The dignity and honour of the Key should be the concern not only of the Council, but of every student on the McGill campus.

Turning to the Key constitution, we are informed by the Handbook that one of its main objectives is "aiding at student and University functions by ushering and maintaining order". In our opinion the validity and effectiveness of such relegation of responsibility must reside in the approval of the McGill Students' Society. In fact, this constitution has been drawn up by the Scarlet Key itself, and has been approved by the Students' Executive Council. Despite the probable legality of this procedure, we maintain that, realistically and morally speaking, the student body should only be subject to the actions of those officers, under those stated restrictions, upon which it has agreed.

Neither should the interpretation of "maintaining order" be left to the decision of the individual Key member in the heat of demanding circumstances. The powers of the Key and acceptable procedure must be clearly defined, and then ratified by the Students' Society. Only under these conditions can the student body be justifiably expected to submit to the control of Scarlet Key patrolmen.

More Than Its Share

This week-end, an as yet undetermined number of excited Queen's fans and equally high-spirited McGillians will pour into Molson Stadium to witness the deciding game of the football season. We can also expect a substantial number of non-collegiate attenders. Despite this heterogeneous quality of the audience and despite a predictably high-voltage atmosphere, before, during and after the game, the Scarlet Key are scheduled to act again as peace officers — because they are paid to do so.

Basing our opinion on past experience, we consider it impossible for the Key to maintain order at this particular University activity. Only about half of the disordered audience comes under the legal jurisdiction of the Key. Investigating the probabilities of disciplinary action after last week's activity, we were informed that several of the more serious offenders could not be brought to justice because they were not members of the Students' Society and so could not be reached. We submit that this course of event is likely to repeat itself in the coming game.

Presuming that the Key had jurisdiction over the entire audience, it has become transparently clear that they are neither strong enough, nor numerous enough to fulfil their responsibilities. If the only factor which prevents a sane and dignified retreat from such an untenable position is the Key's monetary obligations to the Athletics Board, we suggest that it is high time the Students' Society took action in the form of a grant.

Letters To The Editor

SEC's Action Was An Abuse Of Power

Dear Madam:

I cannot join in your commendation of the Students' Executive Council "for its attitude of responsibility in the initiation of organized disciplinary action." Indeed, I maintain that last week's actions were completely outside the purview of the Council and that the members acted with a singular spirit of pettiness.

The members of the SEC are elected by a "popular" vote and their avowed aim, according to all campaign speeches, is to protect the welfare of the students wherever possible.

They are not elected as law-enforcers having authority over, and being endowed with the right to punish, the remainder of the student body at their pleasure, no matter what the circumstances.

It is true that under Article

Six, Section Six of the Students' Society Constitution, they are given certain prerogatives in the field of disciplinary action. However, these are intended for use only against infringement of specific stated regulations and were given to the SEC only because it was the most convenient body for deciding in such minor cases.

Now we find the President of the SEC declaring himself and his colleagues responsible for "public order and good morals" as if they were some supreme legislative and judicial body. I challenge the right of any members of the Students' Executive Council, who are, after all, only my fellow students, to determine whether any action of mine is detrimental to "public order and good morals."

We did not elect them in such a capacity and, yet, perhaps through ignorance, they took this role upon themselves and unjustly inflicted punishment upon five selected students. I believe that the Council should now offer apologies to those students for having publicly attacked them in an area beyond their jurisdiction.

In yesterday's editorial you advocate the establishment of a code of ethics. If this is necessary to preserve us from the arbitrary pontifications of Councils, such as this year's, I heartily agree. However, it should not be founded upon the mere passing of a motion in Council. Rather, it should be placed before the students in a referendum, with each and every article being voted upon separately, in order to ensure that the conferring of such powers upon the Council is the wish of a majority of the students in each case.

We cannot allow the irresponsible actions taken by the SEC last week to establish a precedent if we wish to maintain our ideal of democratic student government.

Dixie Cup Talks Back

Dear Madam,

I, the miserable offender who hurled a paper cup from 20 feet at a Scarlet Key member (and missed by 3 yards due to an unforgivable miscalculation of wind velocity) would like to make certain reflections on the newly introduced system of organized arrest, trial by jury and punishment as it applies to my case.

I absolutely refuse to accept that my action constitutes a crime against Mr. Justice Carswell's "public order and standards of gentlemanly conduct" and maintain that the imposition of a $5.00 fine for such a trivial offence is absolutely ridiculous.

Further, I would dismiss Mr. Carswell's quote as sublime mysticism and nonsense and agree wholeheartedly with the yesterday's Daily editorial in its plea for a student code of ethics, if we are to be subjected to such tyranny at all.

Moreover, I am of the opinion that if students (I repeat students) are to be summoned and fined by other students for such dastardly crimes as missing cheerleaderettes with orange, saying a few words in opposition to the Sacred Key, making passes at a Red Wing, and redistribution of litter, then we at McGill are living in a Fascist Community unparalleled by Dr. Verwoerd's South Africa or Hitler's Nazi Germany.

Dixie T. Cup,
M.A. 1

P.S. Could the other criminals ring 844-7151.

Conforming To Ritual

Dear Madam:

As is customary on this stultified, realistic campus of ours, a person or organization that is attacked in this newspaper must lower itself and reply in the same medium. Hence, we, the editors of the A & S News, grudgingly make our expected appearance.

We will make no attempt to defend ourselves because no arguments were presented in the attack. However, we do acknowledge the fact that we feel a bit remorseful since our supposedly innocuous newspaper was able to occasion such an emotional outburst on the part of more than one intelligent and respected student. We also will duly consider all (and there were a great many) criticisms levelled at the A & S News.

Our only regret is that we had but one paper to give to our community.

Yours resignedly,
Tom Paskal; D. Sankoff.

UBC Establishes Hammarskjold Memorial Fund

A Dag Hammarskjold Memorial Fund—designed to finance the sending of Canadian graduates to overseas countries—has been established by the Alma Mater Society of the University of British Columbia.

The purpose of the fund is to perpetuate the memory of the late Secretary-General of the United Nations. A campus-wide drive for student contributions was held on United Nations Day, last month.

The student-originated idea will remain within the hands of the students, both for the fund-campaigns and the administration of the Fund.

MONEY

The money is to be used primarily to finance UBC graduates taking part in the Canadian University Service Overseas (CUSO) program. Part of the idea is that the graduates will serve in Africa, where the Secretary-General met his death while in active service.

In Ottawa, Lewis Perinbam, acting executive secretary for CUSO hailed the announcement of the fund.

He indicated that there is a possibility that the Hammarskjold Memorial Fund could become a national venture, with all Canadian universities participating.

Mac Sets Blood Record

The MacDonald College Blood Drive Executive has announced the results of the most successful campaign in their history. Five hundreds and seventy-one pints of blood were collected this year at its one-day blood clinic.

Held last Wednesday in the Britton Hall Gymnasium, the clinic was open to donors at 10 am but the official opening ceremony took place at eleven. Dr. Dionne, Dean of the School of Agriculture, delivered the opening address and cut the ribbon.

Randy Klein, Chairman of the MacDonald Blood Drive, expressed her satisfaction at the results of the campaign. This year's total marks an increase of 525 pints over the 1960 figure of 445 pints. She had words of thanks for all the students who participated in the drive and particularly for Estelle Jason and Elaine Hill, her vice-chairmen, and Mona Soloway, her publicity chairman.

INNOVATIONS

The activities of the publicity committee, in particular, featured a number of innovations. Prizes were given to lucky donors at the end of the day and entertainment was provided by a MacDonald folksinging group, "The Educators".

Showing the traditional Blood Drive propensity toward animals, the MacDonald committee paraded Bloody Bossy through the campaign. A good-natured bovine, Bossy ambled through the campus following her approval of the bloody activities.

The figure of 571 pints raises the McGill total to 3776 pints of blood. This is a 16% increase over last year's figure and places McGill in favourable position in the annual Birks Trophy Competition with the University of Montreal. The latter has not yet announced the official figures of its campaign.

AIESEC Seeks Applications For Work Overseas

Prospects for summer traineeships will be discussed and applications for the traineeships accepted at the second AIESEC recruiting meeting tomorrow at 1 pm, in the Old Union Club Room. A $5 registration fee must be handed in with the applications.

A large turnout attended the first meeting, held last week to explain AIESEC's function and to recruit members.

AIESEC works on an exchange system, whereby for every job Canadian students can obtain here for an overseas student, one Canadian is given a job overseas.

CO-OPERATION

The project therefore requires the co-operation of Montreal businessmen. To date, the response to AIESEC pleas for jobs has been fairly good.

Students who succeed in getting a traineeship will probably be able to take advantage of a chartered plane flight running from Montreal to Paris, at a cost somewhere between $130. and $230.

Congress At Laval To Discuss Canada

"The Canadian Experiment: Success or Failure?" is the theme of the first annual session of the Laval Students Congress on Canadian Affairs.

Delegates from 28 other universities will attend Laval from November 15 to 18 to hear such notables as the Honourable E. D. Fulton, Federal Minister of Justice, and the Honourable Rene Levesque, Quebec Minister of natural resources.

The experiment under consideration is Confederation, the experiment of a union of an English majority with a strong French-Canadian element. The Congress will attempt to decide what direction French-English relations are taking.

FIVE SESSIONS

Five sessions will be held, in each of which, one French-speaking and one English-speaking personality will present their viewpoints on such topics as: "What English (French) Canadians have against us".

The question of French-English relations in Canada was first highlighted on the Laval campus last March, by a series of articles written by a small group of English-speaking students in the University's paper, Le Carabin. These same students then went on to organize what has materialized into this annual congress.

SPORTS SCRAPS

by LINDA COHEN

Assoc. Sports Editor

Last week ushered in one of the most successful clubs under the competitive Sports Council—the Red and White hockey Squaws. Coached by Mr. Dave D. Flam, himself a Senior Redmen berth holder, the team is composed of a spirited lot of coeds.

Last year's squad incidentally, the first ever, was one of the most enthusiastic. A high turnout was reported every session and spirit was at an all-time high throughout. The team improved consistently as the season progressed. Pitted against several inter-city squads, the Squaws managed to tie their first match, and from then on, it was coasting all the way.

If you are thinking of a most unfeminine-burly group of coeds, you're wrong! These gals were the same ones that you inadvertently look up at when you're in the library. Despite the dirty looks they give their opponents they are ladies out of uniform. All is forgotten at the final whistle as the gals inquire the extent of damage of the black eyes and bruises.

Sometimes, however, the gals are apt to forget that they're fighting for victory. At one point last year, they all clustered around a dangerously injured St. Mary player who had broken a finger nail while Coach Flam, chewing a wad of gum, furiously, paced to and fro. His yelling, "Come on! Don't just stand there watching her! Get that puck!" came to naught. Unmoved by his epic words, the McGill coeds watched her being carried off the ice on a stretcher, crying hysterically, "It spoils my whole hand".

Response this year has been most gratifying. All the members of last year's squad, save one (who graduated) are returning. Turnout from the sororities has expressed increased interest. Registration is still open and club president, Helen Softly, wishes to remind everyone that experience is not required. So, everyone who is interested can affix their nomenclature to the RVC notice board. With last year's superstars and a raring-to-go bunch of newcomers, the sky's the limit.

Women's Sports Busy With Intramural Meets

by CYNTHIA BAUMAN

The last women's soccer match of the season, played on November 4, saw McGill drop an 8-2 decision to Bishop's. This was the final of three invitational matches played this year. The first was against MacDonald, a scoreless game; the second was played at Mac and the home team won 5-0; the game against Bishop's was played despite rain and mud which resulted in adverse field conditions and a slippery ball.

Goalie Sandra McLachlan literally sat on a ball in an effort to prevent it from counting as a goal, however, the slippery ball eluded her. But she did succeed in making a number of miraculous catches and preventing the opposing team from accumulating an even higher score. Sally Aguyler scored the lone tally for McGill.

Practices this year have been exceptionally well attended, and this, combined with the team spirit of the girls has made it a generally great season.

BASKETBALL

This Thursday at 9 pm the Intramural Semi-Finals in basketball will take place in the Currie Gym. The Phys.-Ed. faculty and the R.V.C. squad who are tied for first place in the League I, will compete

In League one the squad in second place is composed of women from the Faculties of Science and Nursing, while the Alpha Gamma Delta Sorority trails for third. In League II, P. & O.T. and Delta Gamma are tied as runners up.
